Her Statement Undisputed.

"If the basic principle of that struggle was criminal relationship, would have been the aggressor? No. a thousand times, no. Bear in mind, the Government has had six months to dispute all the evidence contained in Mrs. Bo-Mr. Douglass again reiterated that in Ayres Held the Revolver. "The evidence shows beyond a doubt, the speaker said, "that if the defendant had hold of the handle of the pistol it would have been full of blood. Counsel said the next question to con ider was the nature of the wounds and the manner in which they were inflicted, omparing the relative physical proporions of the contending parties.

"Do you mean to tell me that Ayres stood there and permitted this little woman to shoot him from a distance, and his only aggressive movement be to throw up his left arm in an attitude of defence?" asked Mr. Douglass. "Why it was suicide for him to act so "

Hip Wound First Inflicted. Mr. Douglass declared the first bullet truck Ayres in the hip, but did not incapacitate Ayres from engaging with his

"Oh, no; gentlemen, this theory will not work. Why is it Ayres got all three shots, and Mrs. Bonine got none? This is a question for the prosecution as well as the defence to answer, and the burden of proof is on the Government. Intimidation Was Meant.

"When Ayres received that first wound. I tell you he did not consider himself in anger," declared Mr. Douglass. "He had Mrs. Bonine in this room clothed as he was, compromised as she was, and he knew she had no more strength than the stem of a lily. Mr. Douglass analyzed Dr. Glazebrook's testimony as to the infliction of the very dogmatic stand in offering his opinion. Counsel said anything might happer in a struggle for the possession of life Mr. Douglass was demonstrating the action of a pistol before the jury when the District Attorney remarked

"I think it is only fair to tell counsel that the weapon with which the shooting was done would not stand cocking like the pistol you have there."

Mr. Douglass seemed disconcerted for the moment, but soon recovered himself and went on with his argument, which I dwelt with great detail on the question of the powder marks on Ayres undershirt. Again reserting to the struggle, Mr. Douglass said: "You must consider the elasticity of the human body. Has not Dr. Carr said it was possible for an acgle, which no one but God could tell the | robat to shoot himself in the back?" Counsel commented at length on Dr. Schaeffer's jestimony. "He said he could not find traces of blood on the wrapper of the defendant," Mr. Douglass said. "Further, he swore it had never been washed; further still, that it was not the garment Mrs/Bonine wore to Ayren' room. Blood Stains on the Wrapper.

Thanks be to God, some of the blood aked through to the lining, as testified to by these eminent experts. I again thank God she did not wash all the blood out, blessed, blessed coot, tinctured with life and death, a silent witness to the truth of this woman's story!'

Mr. Douglass' Closing.

Mr. Dougla's closed at 12:40 o'clock, having occupied four hours and five min-utes in his argument. In his closing re-Bonine, and said that its very complexity, which at first reading made it seem improbable, upon later and fuller study showed it to be true.

Every paragraph of that statement of several thousand words is fraught with truth. The curtain is about to fall on this drama of human life. We are not here to appeal to your sympathy; we are here to demand justice. There is no middle ground in this case, it is murder or not, it is death to her or life and freedom

During the closing words of Mr. Dougass' speech, Mrs. Bonine began to cry both her sisters buried their faces in their hands. One of the juryotive; none has been proven against men took his handkerchief out to wipe a tear that rolled down his cheek.

GOOD LUNGS AT YALE. Present Freshman Class Superior to Any of Recent Years.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 13.-Dr. Jay W. Seaver, director of the Yale gymnaum, makes an interesting statement about the present freshman class at the university. He has just completed the measure ments and the physical statistics of the class, and says 1905 has a greater lung capacity because fewer of its members smoke, than the members of any class smoke, than the members of any class at Yale in recent years.

He says that the average lung capacity of the class is 260 cubic inches. This is a few inches more than the lung capacity of last year's class.

It is probable that the number of men using tobacco in the present freshman class is 10 per cent smaller than for many years. The class contains more athletes, and it is because of that the fact that many students give up smoking athletes, and it is a seed that the fact that many students give up smoking when they begin to take up athletic train-ing, and in many cases do not bother to resume smoking, is one of the reasons for the smallness of the percentage of smok-
